Karen Reissmann, Unison branch chair, was sacked by Manchester Mental Health Trust in November 2007 – for speaking out against worsening services for patients. Incredibly, on the same day she was suspended, she received a letter from the same Trust promoting her. This Trust is the only one in the country recently rated as 'weak'.

Karen is fighting for reinstatement at an Employment Tribunal. The case is not just about her, but about defending both the NHS and the right of trade unionists to blow the whistle when services are failing patients' needs. That's why her case has won incredibly wide support over the last year and more.

Proper legal representation at a Tribunal is very costly. We need to raise over £10,000 to enable Karen to fight her case. Please give generously.
